

Countries at a Glance

As part of the Inter-American Development Bank's ongoing dialogue with member countries and the development of country strategies, the Gender and Diversity division produces briefs on the status of indigenous peoples and African descendants in various countries around the Latin American and Caribbean region. To further fill knowledge gaps on race and ethnicity in the region, the data driving these briefs is being used to develop data visualization tools, allowing users to explore these statistics create figures through a user friendly interface. As more briefs and data visualization tools become available, they will be made available here.
